There was to declare that, as defendants had shown no follows a power of sale without reference to the little to Inland Lote 718 and 720, the appelients Shanghai, 31st March., 1884. I have experienced great difficulty in arriving the sum of 258,000 table, The evidence of Mr. W. II. Forbes is too indistinct to make any conclusion certain, but perhaps the interpretation which most nearly recongiles the evidence as a whole is that adopted by the Court below, when it found that the 258,000 tacks represented trust money to the extent of 157,000 tacks and an old debt of 101,000 tasks. The evidence. however, at least discloses that this sum 258,000 tacks was a past debt. The state things, then, is this -that on the 31st March, 1884. a promissory note for an existing debt was made by Russell, and Co. to J. M. Forben as trustee for Howqua and that by an instrument purporting to be of even date, collateral security for the payment of this promissory note was given. On the face of it, therefore, there is nothing appropose in the trans ection. But it base been urged against the promissory note that the consideration was past and falsely stated to be 258,000 tasks instead of 157,000 tasks. The answer to the first objection is that even a preexisting debt is a good and valuable consideration; the snawer to the second objection fornished by reviewing the then and ast J. M. Forbes as set forth in W. H. Forbes evidence. The explanation seems to be that debt of 101,000 taels was due to Howqua persomely and a debt of 153,000 tacks was due the trustee of Howons, and that when security was taken by the trustee, there was added the trust money the personal debt and the Hongkong and China must be construed to two amounts were lumped together in a promis embrace the leaseholds in Hongkong as well as sory note, which could not have been made t the share securities, and that then decuments J.
